"It would be not merely foolish, but criminal to directard the teachings of sitch a lesson. The disruption and destruction of the Republican party and the fact that it has been rendered absolutely imposed as an instruction.

anything but mischief in the country, at large has been brought about is large part by the effort to pretend that in the Southern States a sham is a fact, by the insistence upon treating the ghost party in the Southern States as a real party, by refusing to face the truth, which is that under existing conditions there is not and cannot be in the Southern States a party basel primarily upon the negro vote and under negro leadership or the leadership of white men who derive their power solely from negroes.

With these forty-five years of failure of this policy in the South before our eyes, and with catastrophe thereby caused to a great national party net yet six weeks distant from us, it would be criminal for the progressives to repeat the course of action responsible for such disaster, such failure such catastrophe.

"It would be much wars the

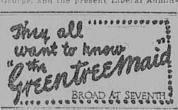

"It would be much worse than use-ess to try to build up the progressive sarty in these Southern States where there is no real Republican party, by appealing to the negroes or to the men who in the past have derived their sole standing from leading and manip-viation the negroes.

who in the past have derived their sole standing from leading and manipulating the negroes.

"I carnestly believe that by appealing to the best white men in the South, the men of justice and of vision as well as or strength and leadership, and by frankly putting the movement in their hands from the outset we shall create a situation by which the colored men of the South will ultimately get justice as it is not possible for them to get justice if we are to continue and perpetuate the present conditions. The men to whom we appeal are the men who have stood for securing the colored man in his rights before the law, and they can do for him that neither the Northern white man nor the colored men themselves can do. Our only wise course from the standpoint of the colored man himself is to follow the course that we are following toward him in the North and to follow the course we are following toward him in the North and to follow the course we are following toward him in the North and to follow irack crossing Canal Street and running along Seventh beside the plant of the company, without crossing Seventh Street, and so not interfering with car service. Manager E. V. Williams, of the Liggett & Myers Company stated that that would not suit the plans of his company for extensions, Captain A. B. Guigon, speaking for the Virginia Railway and Power Company, opposed further shifting tracks crossing the car line on South Seventh Street as a menace to life and limb. Basil M. Gwathmey urged the committee to make all possible concessions to the tobacco industry, pointing out that part of the Pattersen plant had recently been moved away, and that strong influences were being brought to have other plants moved from Richmond to Durham and other tobacco distributing points. On motion of Mr. Fergusson the company be allowed a Reack crossing Seventh Street at Grade, with unlimited use between 1 A. M. and 6 A. M., and with the privilege of one shift hetween 12 M. and 2 F. M. dally, Mr. Williams said this would be satisfactory.

Eneroachments were ordered removed and an alley opened between Sixth Seventh, Broad and Grace Streets.

MOVES TO RICHMOND

Vice-President Whitnker Brings His Offices Here From Chelmant. The hesisquarters of Third Vice-President Frank M Whitnker, of the Chespeake and Ohlo Railway Company, were moved yesterday from Cincinnati to Richmond. His former offices in the Insalis Building, Cincinnati, will be occupied by J. Paul Stevens, super-intendent of the Kentucky and Chicago Divisions of the Chesapeake and Ohio. The removal of Vice-President Whitsker's office to Richmond will mean the removal to this city of a number of experienced railroad men, though it was stated that the lesser clerical employes of the office would be recruited here. The change is in line with the announced plans of the company for concentrating the general offices in the new First National Bank Building.
